Gary Dumas inquired about the lobbying rules and how they applied to him, an attorney who is retained by a Homeowner's Association who wants to meet with a County Commissioner. I advised him on March 7, 2006 that he must register as a lobbyist when he meets with the Commissioner because he is attempting to influence her on behalf of his client. He is not required to pay a registration fee because the Homeowner's Association is considered a non-profit organization under the County Code. Furthermore, he is required to file an expenditure report for his 2006 lobbying activities by July 1, 2007.
