I received a phone call from Julie Edwards, director of the Community Action Agency, and she wanted to know whether it was proper for one of the agency's vendors to hold a luncheon for some staffers at CAA in appreciation for their hard work during the prior year. I advised Ms. Edwards that her employees would not be in violation of the county gift provisions if they accepted this invitation and this would not be a reportable event unless the meal exceeded $100. I further advised Ms. Edwards that each county department/agency has the authority to adopt rules that are more stringent than those in the county code and some departments have done exactly that and banned all gifts.
