I spoke to Christian Izquierdo, who works for Jorge Perez. Mr. Perez sits on the Cultural Affairs Council and had questions about his financial disclosure form. He decided to file a Statement of Financial Interests and wanted to know how to handle multiple, personal residences. Mr. Izquierdo was advised that one's primary residence does not need to be disclosed and other residences outside the state of Florida do not need to be disclosed, either. Any residence not defined as a vacation home located in the state of Florida must be disclosed.
