Rene Diaz, an aide to County Commissioner Joe Martinez, called on April 6, 2009 and wanted to know whether he had a conflict of interest working for the Commissioner in light of the fact Mr. Diaz' son is running for office in the City of Miami. I advised Mr. Diaz that his son's campaign for office in the City of Miami would not create a conflict for him. I further advised him that he could not use his position with Commissioner Martinez to further his son's election. Moreover, any support he wished to provide his son must be off-duty and he can not use County resources or the Commissioner's resources to assist his son's campaign.
