Hi Marsha,

Any person, regardless of his/her past or current relationship with Miami-Dade County government has the right to public records the County may have in its possession. Her service on a County board does not create a conflict under the county's Conflict of Interest and Code of Ethics Ordinance that would prohibit her from inspecting or receiving copies of these records.

If you have any additional questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at your convenience.

Sincerely,

Robert Meyers, Executive Director
Miami-Dade Commission on Ethics and Public Trust

Subject: ethics opinion

Hi Robert,

I had a visit this morning from a retired County employee. She has been offered work with an insurance company. Her job would be to identify individuals to be invited to financial planning seminars offered by the insurance company. She wanted to know if she could obtain a mailing list of County employees (which she can under the public records law, subject to the cost involved). The question is this, she serves on the Board of the Hispanic Affairs Advisory Board. (I assume those board positions are appointed by the BCC, though I am not sure.) She wants to be sure that this does not present any type of conflict from an ethics perspective. Could you let me know what you think? I told her I would ask. Thanks.
