I received a telephone call from Roy Wood in the County Attorney's Office, who was in a selection committee meeting, and he wanted to know whether a committee member had a conflict of interest due to the fact one of the proposers employed the selection committee member's stepson. I asked whether the stepson lived with the stepfather and whether the stepfather received any financial support from the stepson. Mr. Wood answered no to both questions and I concluded that no conflict of interest existed that would prohibit the member from evaluating the application of the proposer who employed his stepson.
