Ed Levenson called the week of December 4, 2006 and he asked whether he could attend a three hour holiday cruise from a party that in the future could have item(s) before his community council. I advised Mr. Levenson that the Jennings rule would not apply at this juncture because there is nothing definitely on the agenda or likely to go before the community council. I further advised Mr. Levenson that if the value of cruise exceeds $100, then it must be reported as a gift.
