Norma,

I see no ethical problem with you putting flyers on a bulleting board about a dieting plan. As long as you do not directly solicit your co-workers during work hours, there is nothing wrong with the activity you have described.

If you have any additional question, feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Robert Meyers

Hello Robert,

Hi, my name is Norma Luque Sentmanat, and I work for the Water & Sewer Division on Douglas Rd, and I was in one of your Ethics Class in the New Employee Orientation. You told us to call you or email you if we had any questions, well, I have one and I hope you can answer it, and my question is: Could I put flyers on the bulletin board? The flyers are about a dieting plan, does not specify what kind of diet plan it is, and to call Kenn (which is my boyfriend), it has his home phone number listed. Kenn is a representative for Herbalife, a reputable comapny, which has been in business for over 20 years, and Kenn needs to build his clientel. What do you think?

Sincerely,
Norma
