Mr. Abreu,

Thank you for your e-mail. Under the county gift rules, employees can accept the tickets to concert. Given the fact the tickets are worth between $35 - $47.50, employees would be required to report the value of these tickets if they accept three. Those accepting one or two tickets would not be required to report the tickets as gifts, as the threshold for disclosing a gift is $100. Furthermore, your method for distributing the tickets seems perfectly reasonable.

If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at your convenience.

Thanks,

Robert Meyers, Executive Director
Miami-Dade Commission on Ethics and Public Trust

Mr. Meyers,

Per the email below, the South Beach Comedy Festival would like to offer the Aviation Department up to 100 free tickets to the Mike Epps performance tonight. The tickets are worth between $35.00 - $47.50. If we are allowed, we would distribute the tickets via our Human Resources Division on a first come first serve, limit three to per employee. I wanted to get your opinion on this matter to make sure that acceptance of the tickets did not violate any ethics rule. Thanks!
