I received a phone call from Barbara Robinson on 1/16/09 who works at the Aviation Department and she wanted to know whether a County employee could work on a political campaign as a campaign scheduler. I advised Mr. Robinson that as long as such activities were performed off-duty and she was not using County resources to further her work on the campaign, she had the right to work for a political campaign. If the employee needed time during the day to perform campaign-related duties, then she would have to take annual leave from her County position.
