One may engage in routine administrative actions, such as submitting an application, without it being considered lobbying.

The use of the word client in the provision, in the absence of other qualifying language, would generally include paying clients. The purpose of the section would not be served and the provision would make no sense if the exception applied only to unpaid work that the architect was involved in. Therefore, I have concluded that it is permissible for such an architect to receive payment for services on an application coming before such a board on which he/she serves. However, I would also note that the provision would not only disqualify the member from speaking, voting or otherwise participating as a board member, but also from speaking or otherwise participating before the board as a representative of the client.

Nor shall such person receive compensation, directly or indirectly or in any form, for services rendered to a third party, who has applied for or is seeking some benefit from the County board or agency on which such person serves, in connection with the particular benefit by the third party. Nor shall such person appear in any court or before any administrative tribunal as counsel or legal advisor to a third party who seeks legal relief from the County board or agency on which such person serves through the suit in question. However, this section shall not prohibit an architect serving without compensation on the Miami-Dade County Board of Energy Regulation or on any architectural Board, whose sole function is to pass on the aesthetics of plans submitted, from submitting plans on behalf of a client so long as such member makes known his or her representation of the applicant and disqualifies himself or herself from speaking or voting or otherwise participating on such application."

>>>> Here's my question--does this limited exception also extend to the proscription on board members' receiving compensation from the (prohibited) appearance, per the second sentence of the code section? Since architects would be permitted to appear on behalf of a client under these limited circumstances, my thinking is that the exception for lobbying by architects would subsume the compensation issue so long as the subject board member discloses the representation and abstains from any participation in the matter.
